FOUNDER NOTE

This residence is designed as a fusion of vernacular and contemporary architecture, creating a living environment that feels both timeless and contextually rooted. The design focuses on balancing modern spatial planning with traditional architectural principles, resulting in a home that is warm, functional, and deeply connected to its user.

A central courtyard forms the heart of the residence, bringing in natural light, ventilation, and a strong visual connection between different spaces of the house. The planning revolves around this courtyard, enhancing spatial openness while creating a calm and inward-looking atmosphere.

Teakwood, basalt stone, Italian marble, wire-cut brick, and textured finishes have been thoughtfully used throughout the project to create richness in materiality while maintaining simplicity in design expression.

Design Approach

Vernacular • Sustainable • Timeless

Inspired by the vernacular architecture of Maharashtra, this residence embraces sustainability through the thoughtful reuse of reclaimed materials. Timber salvaged from a traditional wada has been repurposed throughout the home, while the wooden flooring is crafted from upcycled shipyard timber, each element carrying its own history. Exposed brick walls, lime-textured finishes, and carefully curated upcycled artifacts create a warm, authentic material palette that celebrates craftsmanship and timeless design. The result is a home that respectfully reinterprets regional heritage while promoting a conscious and sustainable lifestyle.
